Legal Education for Elementary Students

legallifeskills.ca

Easily teach your students about the law with our ready-to-use teaching guides!

Our guides are designed to help teachers bring law into the classroom through activities that are easy to lead. These ready-to-use guides for elementary school classes are designed by educators for educators, in collaboration with legal experts.

Cycle One All About Rules!

Rules are an important part of society. From a young age, children are exposed to a series of rules on a daily basis. However, children and adults alike often question where these rules come from and whether they are fair.

This activity uses group discussions to help students realize that their freedom and safety relies on the rules around them

Cycle Two

Living in New France: A Completely Different Reality!

In this activity, students will recreate different scenarios as they might have taken place during the time of New France and contrast them to how they would happen today.

By looking at the many differences between the two situations, students will learn more about their rights and freedoms today.

Cycle Three

Internet and the Law

This activity provides students with basic notions about the use of the Internet and social media. It gives an overview of prohibited online activities and recommends solutions if a child is being harassed online.

At the end of the activity, students work together to write a Charter .

Are You Old Enough?

This activity uses a detailed PowerPoint presentation and everyday scenarios to teach students about the rights and responsibilities they acquire as they get older.

At what age can someone be charged with a crime? ...be fined? ...make decisions about their health?

Don't Fight, Mediate!

In this activity, students are asked to take on specific roles in a simulated mediation session to resolve a conflict between two teens and their families.

The activity calls on students' cooperation skills to find a solution they can all live with .
